Allgood's Bar & Grill

Allgood's is Big Sky's only true Barbecue house. The recipes are steeped in the finest tradition of Alabama & Florida slow cookin', homemade, mouthwatering' barbeque. Dick Allgood was blown up to Montana by Hurricane Andrew, where he landed fully on his feet with an idea to bring Southern-style cooking home to Big Sky.

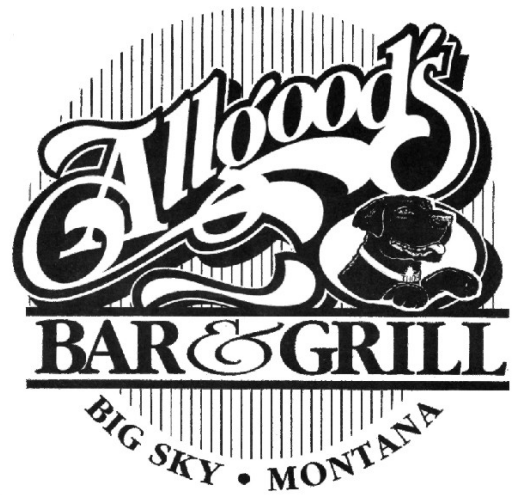

Drop by at breakfast or lunch and you'll see Dick putting together a huge batch of secret Brunswick Stew, or his now public (via the cookbook of local canyon recipes) very tasty Green Chili Stew, with fat roasted Anaheim peppers, ground beef, sausage and seasonings that meld together into an ambrosia that will bring you back for more.

There just ain't a better place to have breakfast with legendary omelets (try the green chili and cheese!) with fried potatoes that literally fills a platter and droops over the sides. Lunches and dinners feature hickory-smoked baby back ribs, 1/2 chicken, turkey, and something not found on any other menu in the area—slow-smoked pork.

All barbecued items are smoked on the premises for at least 6 hours to maximize the taste and ensure melt-in-your-mouth tenderness. Everything that comes out of Dick's kitchen is made from scratch, yes, even the homemade salad dressing and—of course—Dick's private barbecue sauce recipe.

Allgood's is known by the locals to have the absolute best happy hour in Big Sky. From 4—6 p.m. get Two-for-One well drinks. There are 10 draft beers on tap including some favorite microbrew selections. There are 40 different beers—crisp and cold—at any given time. It's a favorite for après golf, après ski, après work, après rafting, après hunting or just lounging. Drop by if you're hungry, thirsty or both—you're sure to be well taken care of. And remember,

If you haven't been to Allgood's,
then you don't know Dick!
